

NAMO

India witnessed change the day when Narendra Damodar Das Modi took oath for the first time being Prime Minister of India. In his first term NAMO started working on identifying the key issues and challenges faced by the citizens of the country in rural and urban areas. The NAMO administration gradually solved the major challenges faced by the common citizens of the country and also pointed out key challenges which needed permanent solutions on priority basis. India being a country with the largest population also has a structure where all the state governments work in sync with the Central Government Machinery. Every State Government has capable Chief Ministers who share a common set of goals for the growth of all the citizens in rural & urban areas of their state and sustainable growth of the country. NAMO along with all the central and state government administration worked for slashing excess regulations, cutting wasteful government expenditures, restructuring government agencies making them more efficient, responsible, citizen centric and increasing transparency to solve the problems of common citizens timely - Zero corruption with Digital India. Central & State government administration also made priority to enhance law & order in every state, to increase the number of honest & capable judges, safeguard judges, safeguard courts machinery giving them authority to maintain discipline, law & order. Government also took steps to safeguard rights of advocates and made sure that common citizens must get justice on time else court management can take corrective action to reduce wastage of time and resources of Indian Judiciary also empowering common citizens with no pendency or zero pendency of court cases in every state. The Central and State Government also made sure to focus on modernisation of police departments by adopting the honest, best practices of international police departments – enhancing life of police officials. More education, more industry centric jobs, more police workforce, more social security, more judges, more efficient court system means more justice with common citizens to reduce crime rate & increasing Sustainable Development. NAMO again took the oath as PM in presence of President of India, Ram Nath Kovind – In his second term NAMO took the great responsibility along with capable Chief Ministers & government administrations of all the states for protecting the life of common citizens in India and other various countries from Covid and reducing the death rate, also maintaining the economic structure of the nation. In the third term NAMO along with all the capable central and state government administration along with industry associations focused on accelerating industrial growth of the country and also keeping balance with agricultural growth. India is all set with its cabinet ministers, chief ministers backed by central and state government administration to make entire government machinery more efficient, responsible, result driven and transparent with focus on solving problems of common citizens, safeguarding rights of common citizens, promoting industrial job centric education structure, protection of environment, reduce gender discrimination in workforce. By 2030 NAMO along with Central and State Government administration will bring complete change in entire government machinery, making it more efficient & completely citizen centric. History speaks - India never had PM like NAMO & India will never have PM like NAMO who dedicated his life to make significant positive impact in the life of citizens in India and other countries.
